Best Investment
a COW OWNER CAN MAKE

THAT'S what over two million cow owners the world over have found the De Laval Cream Separator to be.

A De Laval Separator saves butter-fat and produces cream of superior quality over any setting system or any other separator every time it is used, twice a day every day in the year.

It involves far less labor than any setting system, has greater capacity, runs easier and lasts from two to ten times longer than any other separator.

Even if you have only two or three cows, if you are selling cream or making butter, a De Laval Cream Separator is the most profitable investment you can make.

If you are using any other cream separator it will certainly pay you to try a De Laval alongside, your present machine and see how much cleaner you can skim with a De Laval, and also how much easier it is to run and keep clean and sanitary.

When you consider that a De Laval Separator usually saves its cost the first year and frequently in a few months, and then goes right on doing so for from ten to twenty years, and it is further understood that the De Laval may be purchased on such terms that it will actually pay for itself while you are using it, it can easily be seen that there is no excuse for any one putting off the purchase of this great cream-saving machine.

Potatoes in Bread-making

Dr. Campbell, of the British mission, speaking of the result of experiments, says the addition of potatoes to flour improves the bread in every way. It gives it a better bloom, texture, and flavor, and the bread keeps well. On account of the shortage of white flour, it is the patriotic duty of everyone baking bread at home to use a certain quantity of potatoes.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS
ALWAYS KEPT ON HAND

Mrs. Ernest E. Adkins, Brotton, Sask. writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets with great success for four years and always keep a box on hand." Thousands of other mothers say the same thing—once they have used the Tablets for their little ones they will use nothing else. Experience shows them that the Tablets are the ideal medicine. They are a mild laxative, thorough in action and never fail to relieve the minor ailments of little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOTHERS OF CANADA
PREPARE FOR TROUBLE

When a girl becomes a woman, and a woman becomes a mother, and when a woman passes through the change of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances. Many thousands in this section would testify as to the following:

St. Catharines, Ont.—"Over forty years ago I was restored to health by taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It was after medicine and doctors had failed to help me or give relief. I had, through overwork, become all run down in health. I was weak and finally became a nervous wreck. The 'Prescription' was recommended to me, and at the time I started to take it I had not been able to do anything for over a year. I took the 'Favorite Prescription' and the 'Golden Medical Discovery' as well. It took several smaller bottles, but I was completely restored to good health and since that time when I have felt the need of these medicines I have taken them and always with perfect satisfaction."—Mrs. Wm. Baker, 28 Page St.

Stratford, Ont.—I was all run down, weak, nervous. I also suffered with severe pains through my legs. I was very miserable when a friend advised me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one bottle seemed to give renewed strength. It stopped the pain in my back, also helped my nervous condition. It is surely a good tonic for women.—Mrs. PRINCETON OULSON, 100 Milton St.

Aerial Navigation Over Great Lakes
Detroit & Cleveland Co. Is Investigating Types of Passenger Aircraft

The Detroit & Cleveland Aerial Navigation Co., of which A. A. Schantz, a wealthy Detroit steamboat man, is the head, is now conducting investigations of aircraft to determine what will be safe and satisfactory for carrying passengers up and down the Great Lakes. Mr. Schantz says air transportation between Detroit and Cleveland and Detroit and Buffalo will be established as soon as a satisfactory type of craft can be found.

The Detroit & Cleveland Aerial Navigation Company was formed more than ten years ago, when it first seemed likely that air transportation would be put on a practicable basis. The officers, stockholders and directors of the company are the same as those of the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Company. The emergency service that Mr. Schantz has planned, would be to carry passengers who must make unusually fast time between Detroit and Cleveland, or Detroit and Buffalo, or New York. It is planned to have planes ready at a moment's notice to leave Detroit, Cleveland or Buffalo. In case the company is given mail contracts to handle, a regularly scheduled service will be established.

CORNS PEEL OFF, SHRIVEL RIGHT UP

It's a corker the way Putnam's Extract goes after the kernel of a corn. You simply point on a few drops of Putnam's and relief comes at once. No other corn remedy can touch the quick, sure action you get with Putnam's Painless Corn Extract, cure like Putnam's, why more? When a quarter buys a dead-sea Get Putnam's today.

Must Stop Adding Bran and Shorts

All Flour in Future Must Bear the Designation "Government Standard Flour"

The food control board have instructed the mills that are re-grinding bran and adding it to the shorts, at once to discontinue the practice and keep the quality of shorts up to standard to meet the pig-feeding requirements. All flour in future must bear the designation "Government Standard Flour" and all quotations to the trade must be made on that designation. The mills will be allowed to put up graham flour in seven-pound paper bags, with the weight marked outside.

Mills are ordered, moreover, to encourage the purchase of graham flour and edible bran and are required to keep the same regularly stock and recommend the adding of one pound of edible bran to every 4 or 5 pounds of government standard flour for the making of home-made bread.

An Oil That Is Famous.—Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

Constructing Long Range Guns
A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Amsterdam says a frontier correspondent asserts that the Germans are constructing long range guns of the type used in the bombardment of Paris at St. Germain, five miles southwest of Liège, in Belgium, and that they have requisitioned the Cockerill works for the purpose. The despatch says that all the workmen in the factory have refused to work and will be deported this month.

New Type of Vessel

Building Electrically Propelled Merchant Ship in England

The first electrically propelled merchant ship ever built in England and the largest electric vessel in the world is now undergoing its finishing touches at a British shipyard, and will soon start on its first voyage. The vessel is designed on a system in which a combination of steam and electricity is employed. The importance of this type of vessel under present conditions is its decreased coal consumption and larger cargo space.

Eight nations in the European war have 17,000,000 fighting men.

Canada's Achievement

Canada Is Out to Do Its Share in Beating Germany

As for casualties, there have been 400,000 Canadians under fire so far and 100,000 have been killed, wounded and taken prisoner. Major-General Newburn does not state how many of that number were killed in action or died of wounds, but a recent semi-official statement fixed it at about 30,000. In three years of the hardest kind of fighting only one in thirteen or so was killed.

This is Canada's military achievement—a splendid one, which overshadows any misgivings as to cost to the country in money. "Up to March 31 there had been $835,000,000 spent and, as is noted, it is estimated that $500,000,000 will be needed in the year ending next March 31. That is a big jump from the $60,000,000 spent in 1914-15 and even from the $302,000,000 spent in 1917-18. But Canada is out to do its share in beating Germany, and the financial cost, great as it is in proportion to the country's wealth, is a mere incident to that great objective.—From the Buffalo Express.

Health for all the Family

MODERN, artificial methods of life make it absolutely necessary to use medicines occasionally to ensure the regular and healthful action of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

In the great majority of homes Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are recognized as the most satisfactory regulating medicine for all the members of the family.

This medicine is not in any sense a cure-all, but its use occasionally, as required, ensures the activity of the liver, kidneys and bowels, the cleansing of the system, and the purifying of the blood.

For this reason you can depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to prevent and cure constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, kidney derangements and resulting painful ailments, such as backache, rheumatism and lumbago.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are so universally used that you can obtain them at any store where medicines are sold.

X The Drove Road

Foster spent the next day lounging about Edinburgh and looking out for Daly, whom he had expected to follow him. He, however, saw nothing of the man, and felt half disappointed, because he missed the excitement of the chase. It was too cold and wet to roam the streets with much enjoyment, there was no good play at the theatres and he had seen picture palaces in Canada. Moreover, he had led an active life, and having nothing to do soon he began to get irritable. It was curious that he had never felt bored at the Garth, even when he scarcely saw Alice during the day, but then the Garth had a peculiar charm. It was possible that Daly had gone back there, and had been a fool to leave.

He was sitting in a corner of the hotel smoking room next morning when a stranger came up and sat down close by. The man who lit his pipe, had a quiet, thoughtful air. There was nothing about him to indicate his rank of occupation, and Foster wondered what he wanted.

"I hope you won't object to my asking if you're a Canadian?" he said.

"I don't know if I object or not. Anyway, I'm English."

"But perhaps you have been in Canada," the stranger remarked politely.

Foster looked hard at him. "I haven't the pleasure of your acquaintance, but had better hint that you're wasting time if you're a friend of Daly's."

"The stranger smiled and Foster saw that he had been in cautious. 'I don't know the gentleman.'"

"Then what is your business?"

"If you insist on knowing, I'm connected with the police."

"Well," said Foster, "I'll pay you a compliment by stating that I wouldn't have imagined it; but I don't understand what the police have to do with me."

"It's very possible that they have nothing to do with you, but you can perhaps make that obvious. You signed the visitor's book John Foster, which doesn't quite correspond with the letters on your bag."

"Ah!" said Foster, "I begin to understand. No doubt, you noticed Lawrence Featherstone's name on the lock, and the Canadian Police label?"

"If you insist on knowing, I'm connected with the police."

"Well," said Foster, "I'll pay you a compliment by stating that I wouldn't have imagined it; but I don't understand what the police have to do with me."

"Ah!" said Foster, "I begin to understand. No doubt, you noticed Lawrence Featherstone's name on the lock, and the Canadian Police label?"

"If you insist on knowing, I'm connected with the police."

"I did," the other admitted with humorous dryness.

Foster pondered. On the whole, he was glad he had registered in his proper name, though he had been tempted to give Featherstone's, in case Daly made inquiries. He had, however, decided that the latter probably thought they were both in Great Britain and would expect them to keep together. He did not doubt that his visitor belonged to the police, because an impostor would be easily found out.

"Featherstone's my partner and I took his baggage by mistake when we left a small Canadian town," said, and added after a pause: "I expect the explanation sounds rather lame."

The other smiled, but Foster felt he was being subjected to a very close scrutiny. Although sensible of some annoyance, he felt inclined to like the man, who presently resumed: "You have been in Edinburgh before."

"For a day; I left in the evening and went to Newcastle."

"To Newcastle?" said the other thoughtfully. "Did you stay there?"

"I did not," said Foster, who thought frankness was best. "I went back to a country house in Northumberland that belongs to my partner's father. Lawrence Featherstone and I own a sawmill in Canada, but at present I'm taking a holiday in the Old Country."

He could not tell if the man was satisfied or not, for he asked abruptly: "Who is the Mr. Daly you mentioned?"

"I really don't know. It looks as if he were something of a blackmailer, and I must admit that I was trying to keep out of his way."

The man pondered for a minute, and then getting up gave Foster a card.

"Very well; I don't think I need keep you. You have my address if you should want to communicate with me."

He went out and Foster thought he had not handled the situation with much skill. It was a mistake to mention Daly and perhaps to state that he had been to Newcastle. He thought the man looked interested when he heard this. Then it was curious that he seemed to imagine Foster might want to write to him; but he began to see a possible reason for his being watched. Holton had, no doubt, sent somebody over to inquire about the stolen bonds, and if the man had discovered anything important, he might have asked the help of the police. In this case, the movement of the strangers from Canada would be noted. The trouble was that Foster could not be frank with the police, because Lawrence's secret must be carefully guarded.

In the afternoon he entered a fashionable tea room and sat for a time in a corner. The room was divided into quiet nooks by Moorish arches, from which lamps of an antique pattern hung by chains and threw down a soft red glow. Heavy imitation Eastern curtains deadened the hum of voices and rattle of cups. The air was warm and scented, the light dim, and Foster, who had often camped in the snow, felt amused by the affectation of sensual luxury.

He ateiced cakes and languidly watched the people. He could only see two or three men, one of whom he had noticed at the hotel and afterwards passed in the street. This was probably a coincidence, but it might have a meaning, and he moved back behind the arch that cut off his corner. When he next looked about the fellow had gone. There were, however, a number of pretty, fashionably-dressed girls, and one marked the warm color in their faces and the clearness of their voices.

Scottish capital seemed to be inhabited by handsome women.

He was, however, somewhat surprised when one came towards him and he recognized the girl he had met at Hawick station. She had hardly expected her to claim his acquaintance, as she obviously meant to do.

"You seem to be fond of Edinburgh," she remarked, sitting down at his table.

"It's an interesting city. I'm a stranger and ignorant of your etiquette; but would I be permitted to send for some cake and tea?"

"I think not," she answered smiling. "For one thing, I must go in a minute."

Foster waited. The girl had good manners, and he thought it unlikely that she was willing to begin a flirtation with a man she did not know; besides she had stopped him sending for the tea. She was pretty and had a certain air of refinement, but it was a dainty pretentious that seemed to harmonize with the exotic luxury of the room. This was a different thing from Alice. Featherstone's rather stately beauty, which found an appropriate background in the dignified austerity of the Garth.

"Are you enjoying your stay here?" she resumed.

"Well," said Foster, "I begin to think I've had enough. The climate's not very cheerful, and the people seem suspicious about strangers."

"Are you enjoying your stay here?" she resumed.

A Strategic Position

Jinks was always complaining of his wife's memory. "She can never remember anything," said he. "It's awful."

"My wife was just as bad," said Brown, "till I found a capital recipe."

"What was it?" asked Jinks eagerly.

"Why," said Brown, "whenever there's anything particular I want the missus to remember I write it on a slip of paper and gum it on the looking glass."

Freedom of Labor and Capital

Prevention of Industrial Troubles During the War

The plan to make strikes or boycotts unlawful during the period of the war should not be represented as labor's or capital's victory. Concessions were made by both, resulting in what may be called a victory for the freedom of both.

The report submitted by the war labor conference, appointed by Secretary of Labor Wilson, outlines a program for the prevention of industrial troubles during the war, and contains provisions that should insure industrial peace when the war is over. Each side agrees to lay aside its most powerful weapon—the strike and the lockout—for the period of hostilities. Employers are not to discharge workers because of union membership, and workers are not to use coercive measures to induce persons to join their unions or compel employers to bargain with them. All these provisions might well become a permanent part of the new industrial order.—From Leslie's.

"Support and Substitution"

The Great Work for This Time Until the War Ends

"Support and substitution" is a phrase that is being heard more and more these days, on this side of the Atlantic. For more than a year its meaning has been realized in both England and France, and every month finds those nations coming nearer and nearer to a practical realization and cheerful acceptance of the duties involved in that meaning.

At the very basis of this new war slogan lies the conviction that our men in the trenches must be supported by a constant and dependable stream of reinforcements. Men must be released from civilian life. Furthermore, our boys must be supported by a practically unlimited supply of ammunition which is up to standard in every particular.

The third item of support is food. This, too, must be of the best and plentiful. There must never be an anxious moment "over" there because of a possible shortage of food. If there is to be no shortage of food it must exist here in Canada, first. An unending supply of men, ammunition and food must be maintained to the matter of food supply.

Support can be given only by substitution of labor. In each case the logical solution lies with the women of each nation. Already English and French women have done nobly. Canadian women are more than willing to do their share in this work which is, by far, the most important of any war work yet undertaken by women. It is too much to say it is the most important work undertaken by either men or women.

Canadian women have already done much in munitions. Last summer found the pioneers in this substitution movement doing work on fruit farms and dairies. Gardening was also carried on successfully. The winter months have been devoted to preparation for a more vigorous substitution on the land. Practical farming has been attended, courses taken in poultry-raising, gardening and dairying. Like their English sisters, Canadian women are training so that when the first call comes they can present themselves thoroughly equipped as to training.

It is interesting to note that in practically every instance the women, over, where women have substituted on the land they have been accepted graciously by the farmer and parted with regretfully. In each case he has felt that he had drawn a lucky number in the war-time lottery. It is a special request to the committee that the same unusually efficient and valued workers be retained for the next season. In almost every instance it was the glowing patriotism of the girls that made their work excellent and praiseworthy.

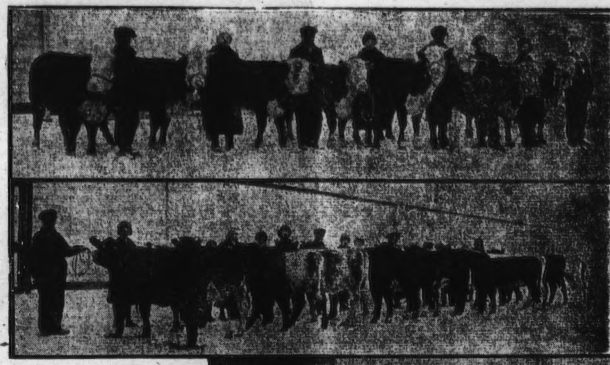

The verdict of the farmers themselves at the end of their first season with "farmerettes" is that they are far superior to the "farm man" who is, too often, content to be simply "the man with the hoe." When told to do real work, the girls do it as directed and have no theories to offer. They expect to work and are careful. College girls apply the discipline gained through study, and the feeling that what they are doing is helping the men in the trenches carries the work to a successful finish.

Not all women can contribute by making munitions or doing land service. But the talents of every woman can be substituted for those of some other woman and a grand interchange of work will result which in the aggregate supports the men overseas. The woman who cannot farm but is a model housekeeper can give her services in this line to the housekeeper who can farm. The one who can cook can contribute her services for those dependent on the cook who can also farm. The one with the training or instincts of the kindergarten can devote herself to the care of the children of the mother who can farm and so on down the line of occupations and workers. The escape from work that may have become monotonous, or even distasteful to work that is congenial will be, in itself, a real rest and recreation.

The city woman is as closely linked up to this system of substitution as the country girl. She can substitute her training and leisure as an exchange for work at which she would not be a competent worker. She can organize committees or whole campaigns, can conduct successful registration bureaus, can give of her time where they count for most. She can organize whole villages or country sides into co-operative groups which will be real welfare work and pave the way for future nation-wide campaigns which must be given of the life to be lived as effectively and honestly as it should be.

The city woman who can demonstrate successfully could organize community canning centres and here again the gardener can give of her surplus, the worker of her leisure and a store of winter foodstuffs can be put by for the one who is forced to forsake home for a while and substitute in order to support. The one who is an expert caterer should find

Teaching The Children To Farm

MUCH is being added to the attractiveness of life on farms, especially to children, by the children's competitions which have become a feature of the fairs and exhibitions in Western Canada during the past year. At every place at which these competitions were held they were the centre of interest, not only to the children themselves but also to adult visitors. In fact many of the older exhibitors displayed a greater interest in the exhibits of the children than in their own.

These competitions are generally arranged by breeders' associations, sometimes with the assistance of the Department of Agriculture of the province and other public bodies. Usually they are confined to boys and girls between the ages of ten and fifteen, who are required to feed and look after a calf, a pig or a lamb, as the case may be, for a certain period previous to the opening of the fair.

One of the most successful of these competitions was the baby beef competition held at the Calgary Winter Fair in December. The competition was for heifers, pure bred or grade, born in 1916, and fed between November 1st and the date of the show, by boys or girls between nine and seventeen years of age. Fourteen prizes from $25 to $100 were awarded. Altogether there were fifty-three exhibitors in the competition, including five girls. The first prize was taken by M. A. Isabel Stewart, of Forestburg, Alberta, and the second by Florence Myra Bages, of Dayland, Alberta. Both these girls were near the front in the open competition.

So valuable are these competitions considered to be in encouraging boys and girls to take an interest in live stock, and so great has been their success that no exhibition in the future will be complete without them. Already arrangements have been made to increase their scope and at the summer fair at Calgary this year there will be a sheep shearing competition, while at the winter fair there will be a lamb and pig feeding competition, in addition to the baby beef competition, and the period during which the animals will be in sole charge of the youngsters will be extended to three months.

The production of baby beef is developing into one of the most important branches of farming in Alberta. For this result much credit is due to J. G. Rutherford, Superintendent of the Animal Industry Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Dr. Rutherford has been largely responsible for making known to the farmers of Alberta the advantages of raising baby beef, some of which are greater gains made on the same amount of feed by the youngest cattle than those of more age; quicker turnover in the money invested in cattle; the greater salability of market. On the Demonstration Farm at Strathmore, Alberta, under the direction of Dr. Rutherford, demonstrations in the raising of baby beef have been conducted for some years, with results that are entirely satisfactory from a profit-making point of view. The future of the baby beef industry in Alberta, and in fact throughout Western Canada, where conditions are extremely favorable to its success, is very bright.

The Dead Who Live Forever

Brave, Chivalrous Men Who Gave Up Their Young Lives For Justice

This is the tribute paid by Prime Minister Lloyd George to those who have died in the war. "There are hundreds of thousands of sorrowing men and women in this land on account of this war. Their anguish is too deep to be expressed or to be confronted by words, but, judging the multitudes whom I know not by those I do know, there is not a single one of them who would recall the valiant dead to life at the price of their country's dishonor. The example of these brave men who have fallen has enriched the life and exalted the purpose of all. You cannot have four millions of men in any land who voluntarily sacrifice everything the world can offer them in obedience to a higher call, without enabling the country from which they sprang.

"The fallen, while they have illumined with fresh lustre the glory of their native land, have touched with a new dignity the household which they left for the battlefield. There will be millions who will come back and live to tell children of the heroism how a generation before in England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales in the end of the nineteenth century the race were willing to leave ease and comfort to face privation, torture and death in the vain quest for the weak and justice for the oppressed.

"There are hundreds of thousands who will never come back, men who there will be for ages to come sacred memories in a myriad of homes of brave, chivalrous men who gave up their young lives for justice, for right, for freedom in peril.

"This resolution means that the greatest empire on earth through this hour shall be living for the readiness with which the hero dead enters each home of the heroic dead, grasps the bereaved by the hand and says: 'The world is grateful to you for your share of the sacrifice as well as for their, partakes in your pride for their valor and in your grief for their loss.'

Work With Western Indians

The Splendid Results Obtained by Indian Agent Graham

Remarkable results have characterized the work of Mr. William M. Graham, for many years Indian agent at File Hills, Saskatchewan. He has devoted himself unflinchingly to the work of the Indian Service, and his appointment to the newly-created position of Indian commissioner for the three provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta means a development of his work on a larger scale, which will increase the usefulness of this enthusiastic and efficient public servant.

Mr. Graham has long been recognized his attention to the all-important problem of the increased production on all Western Indian Reserves. He plans to develop throughout the province a large number of Indian farms, which he has been developing since he has been in the colony. The story of this achievement is unique. Some of the larger Indian Reserves are used exclusively by the ex-occupants of the Indian schools. The purpose was to give the Indian children a certain distance from their beloved but ambitious relatives, where they could develop their own more promising destinies, away, at least a good portion of the time, from the retardation of the Indian life. The great war evoked a splendid patriotic response from File Hills. The Winnipeg Tribune points out, in an interesting article dealing with the colony, that practically every Indian who could go has gone to the front. One is a prisoner in Germany, one was killed in France, another has been reported missing, while eight or nine have been wounded. Old and young are home have raised nearly $8,000 for patriotic and Red Cross organizations. The squares being particularly active. In extending this splendid work to all the three Prairie Provinces, Mr. Graham has been given a national service, and should be given the highest recognition and practical encouragement and co-operation of the government and of the Canadian citizenhood. Toronto Globe.

The beginning of Team-play. We regard the appointment of Foch as a most auspicious omen. It means that personal and racial prejudices are vanishing in the heat of conflict, and that the old racial enmities are being welded into a fighting brotherhood whose unbroken front will stand between Germany and its foes until the great victory is won. —Chicago Evening Post.

Buffalo Show Big Increase

Everything in Flourishing Condition At Wainwright National Park

Everything at the Buffalo park is in a flourishing condition, according to Superintendent A. G. Smith. The latest report concerning the operations on the big reserve gives evidence that the year just brought to a close has been the most successful yet.

Improvements have been made along many miles, while the animals in the park have given good increases. The buffalo have done exceedingly well, showing an increase of 37 over the number of last year, and a record of 1,400. Of this number nine died, four were shot, and one was shipped to Brandon. The elk have also done well, increasing their number by 14, and there has been no decrease. The deer and moose have also given an increase.

The number of wild animals now in the park is as follows: Buffalo, 2,200; elk, 84; deer, 397; moose, 18; antelope, 3; cat, 19; making a total of 3,441 animals.

The report also shows for farming operations that 8,000 bushels of oats were threshed. Of this amount 2,100 bushels were shipped to other parks; 1,200 tons of hay were also cut and stacked; and prairie covering the cutting of 67 tons of hay on the Buffalo Park reserve were granted to settlers.

It was also a banner year for visitors, due no doubt to the fact that motor cars were used more extensively. At the entrance gate at Wainwright the records show 4,238 visitors during the year. The year also saw the province in Canada, also from Newfoundland and from 19 of the United States, have built and 1,200 cars during the last year. The records kept at the farm and the Hardisty gate also show a great increase in visitors, bringing the total visitors to the park during the last year to nearly 5,000. A great deal of time was also spent on beautifying Wainwright's summer resort, Mott Lake. Miles of new walks were built, and 1,000 cords of dry wood were removed from the reserve.

"A good many ladies were disappointed this afternoon."

"How was that?"

"The guest was spoken of as a bridge expert and he turned out to be nothing but a famous engineer."

When Carey Stopped the Gap

The Good Work of the Men Past the Fighting Age

The more we hear about Brigadier-General Carey, the more we are struck by the scratch force that he picked up from nowhere to stop the German host. No one must claim exemption in a very real sense, for the men who substitutes must be supported while she in turn supports.

There is something old-fashioned about that picture of Carey himself, carelessly of duty, riding along the hastily made lines giving an order here and shouting a word of encouragement there to his weary and hard-pressed men. We have read so much about general staffs that we had begun to think there would never be any more of the old-fashioned type. Carey not only stopped the gap on the road to Amiens, but, with his middle-aged and old-fashioned volunteers, his gunners armed with rifles, and his own heavy gallows down the line, he did it. The scene was a glaringly unusual war scene normal again. —From the New York Times.

A Complete Job. Edit—Well—he did it. He accepted your home, your honour, your bracelet, your carcases—he must have accepted about everything of yours. Jack—She did. She even accepted my rival. —London Free Press.

May Have Happened. "This paper tells of a man passing himself off as a woman for twenty years. Now I wonder—"

"What do you wonder?"

"If I ever gave up my seat to that lobster on the street car."

Every Farmer Needs a Ford

THE Motor Car is a greater convenience to the average farmer than the telephone, the rural mail or even the grain binder.

The binder which is considered as a very useful implement is rarely used more than a few days during the entire year. The rest of the time it stands idle, taking up space, while the automobile is available for use throughout all seasons, and both day and night.

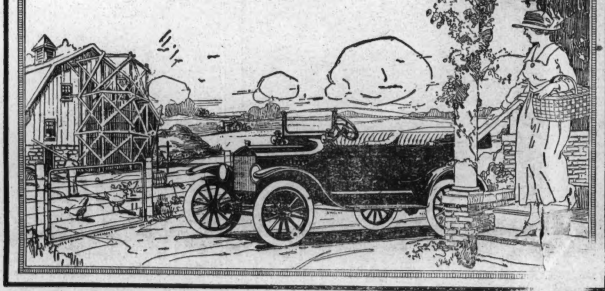

It is ever ready to run down the lane to the back field or the pasture with a parcel or a message, or take you and your family to town for shopping purposes—or on an errand to the neighbors.

The motor car is called upon whenever anything is wanted in a hurry. It is the most useful implement or convenience for the farm. It helps you conserve your energies and time for productive work and enables you and your family to accomplish more with less energy. You surely feel the need of a Ford. Why not order one today?

Everybody Must Now Eat "Victory Bread"

That Canada is at war will be brought home to every man, woman and child next month when all bread made from standard wheat flour must be labelled "Victory Bread" and mixed with a percentage of substitutes for wheat flour. This is the effect of a recent order issued by the Canada Food Board in a vigorous effort to save the existing wheat supplies so as to make them last until the wheat of the coming harvest reaches the flour mills and the new flour is distributed for consumption.

The new order defines substitutes for wheat as corn, oats, barley, rice, rye, buckwheat, tapioca and any mixture of same, potato flour, bran shorts, oatmeal, rolled oats, corn meal, corn starch, hominy, corn grits, rice meal and potato meal.

On and after July 1st one pound of wheat substitute must be used by all bakers, confectioners and public eating places with every nine pounds of standard wheat flour in making any bakers' products, and the same rule shall apply to every person in Canada who bakes bread, rolls or pastry for private consumption. On and after July 15th in all Canada east of Port Arthur the proportion is to be increased to one pound with every four.

In Port Arthur and the West this increase is still in abeyance, preceding the report on the quantities of substitutes available.

It is provided in this Order that on and after July 15th no licensed dealer shall sell for private consumption east of, but not including Port Arthur, the proportion of not less than one pound to two pounds of Standard Flour. West of Port Arthur the proportion is kept at one pound substitute to four pounds wheat flour. The brand "Victory Bread" is to be affixed to every loaf as a guarantee that the prescribed amounts of substitutes for standard wheat flour are being included therein. Bread not bearing this label may be seized and any person violating the regulation is liable on conviction to a penalty not exceeding $1000 and not less than $100, or imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months or both fine and imprisonment. Fines are to be paid to the municipality if the municipal officer secures the conviction or to the Provincial Treasurer, where a Provincial Officer secures the conviction.

WEDDING

LANDYMORE—DEEKS.

A happy wedding took place last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mr. Waite G. Landymore. His daughter Doris Josephine was united in marriage to Claude Albert Deeks by Rev. R. K. Swenerton, B.A., B.D. A large number of relatives and friends were present, and a merry party set down to the splendid wedding feast which followed the ceremony. The happy couple took the evening train for Calgary and were given a royal send off at the station. On their return they will reside at Mr. Deeks' farm about seven miles south-west of town.
